

ARE YOU CONSIDERING A GRADUATE LAW DEGREE IN THE US?

Here are three reasons to consider the Indiana University Maurer School of Law:

1

SPECIALIZATIONS:

We have six, taught by the world's leading experts. Choose from financial regulation and capital markets, information privacy and cybersecurity, business and commercial law, international law and globalization, intellectual property, and American law. You'll attend classes with JD students and graduate students from across the US and more than 25 countries.

2

DEGREE CHOICES:

Our LLM program has been around for 100 years — it's one of the oldest in the US. Or maybe you're interested in another graduate degree: MCL, SJD, or our unique PhD in Law and Democracy. If a JD degree is your goal, it may be possible for you to count some of your LLB credits toward the JD program, which will shorten completion time to as little as two years.

3

RANKING AND NETWORKING:

US News ranks Indiana Law 34th in Best Law Schools in the country, with top-rated programs in tax, international studies, and intellectual property. The International Jurist has given Indiana Law top awards in Value, Academics, and Law School Experience. With alumni in 55 countries worldwide, you'll have access to a strong network of connections from your very first day in Bloomington.

SEE FOR YOURSELF

Contact lgradadm@indiana.edu for more information, or visit law.indiana.edu/graduate

MAURER SCHOOL OF LAW
BLOOMINGTON